Working in luxury hospitality design in California, Jamie Ivey helped to create one-of-a-kind hotels throughout the globe. Since starting Ivey Design Group with her husband, she's worked in high-end residential, multi-family, office, and restaurant interior design.

Who is your inspiration for this space?

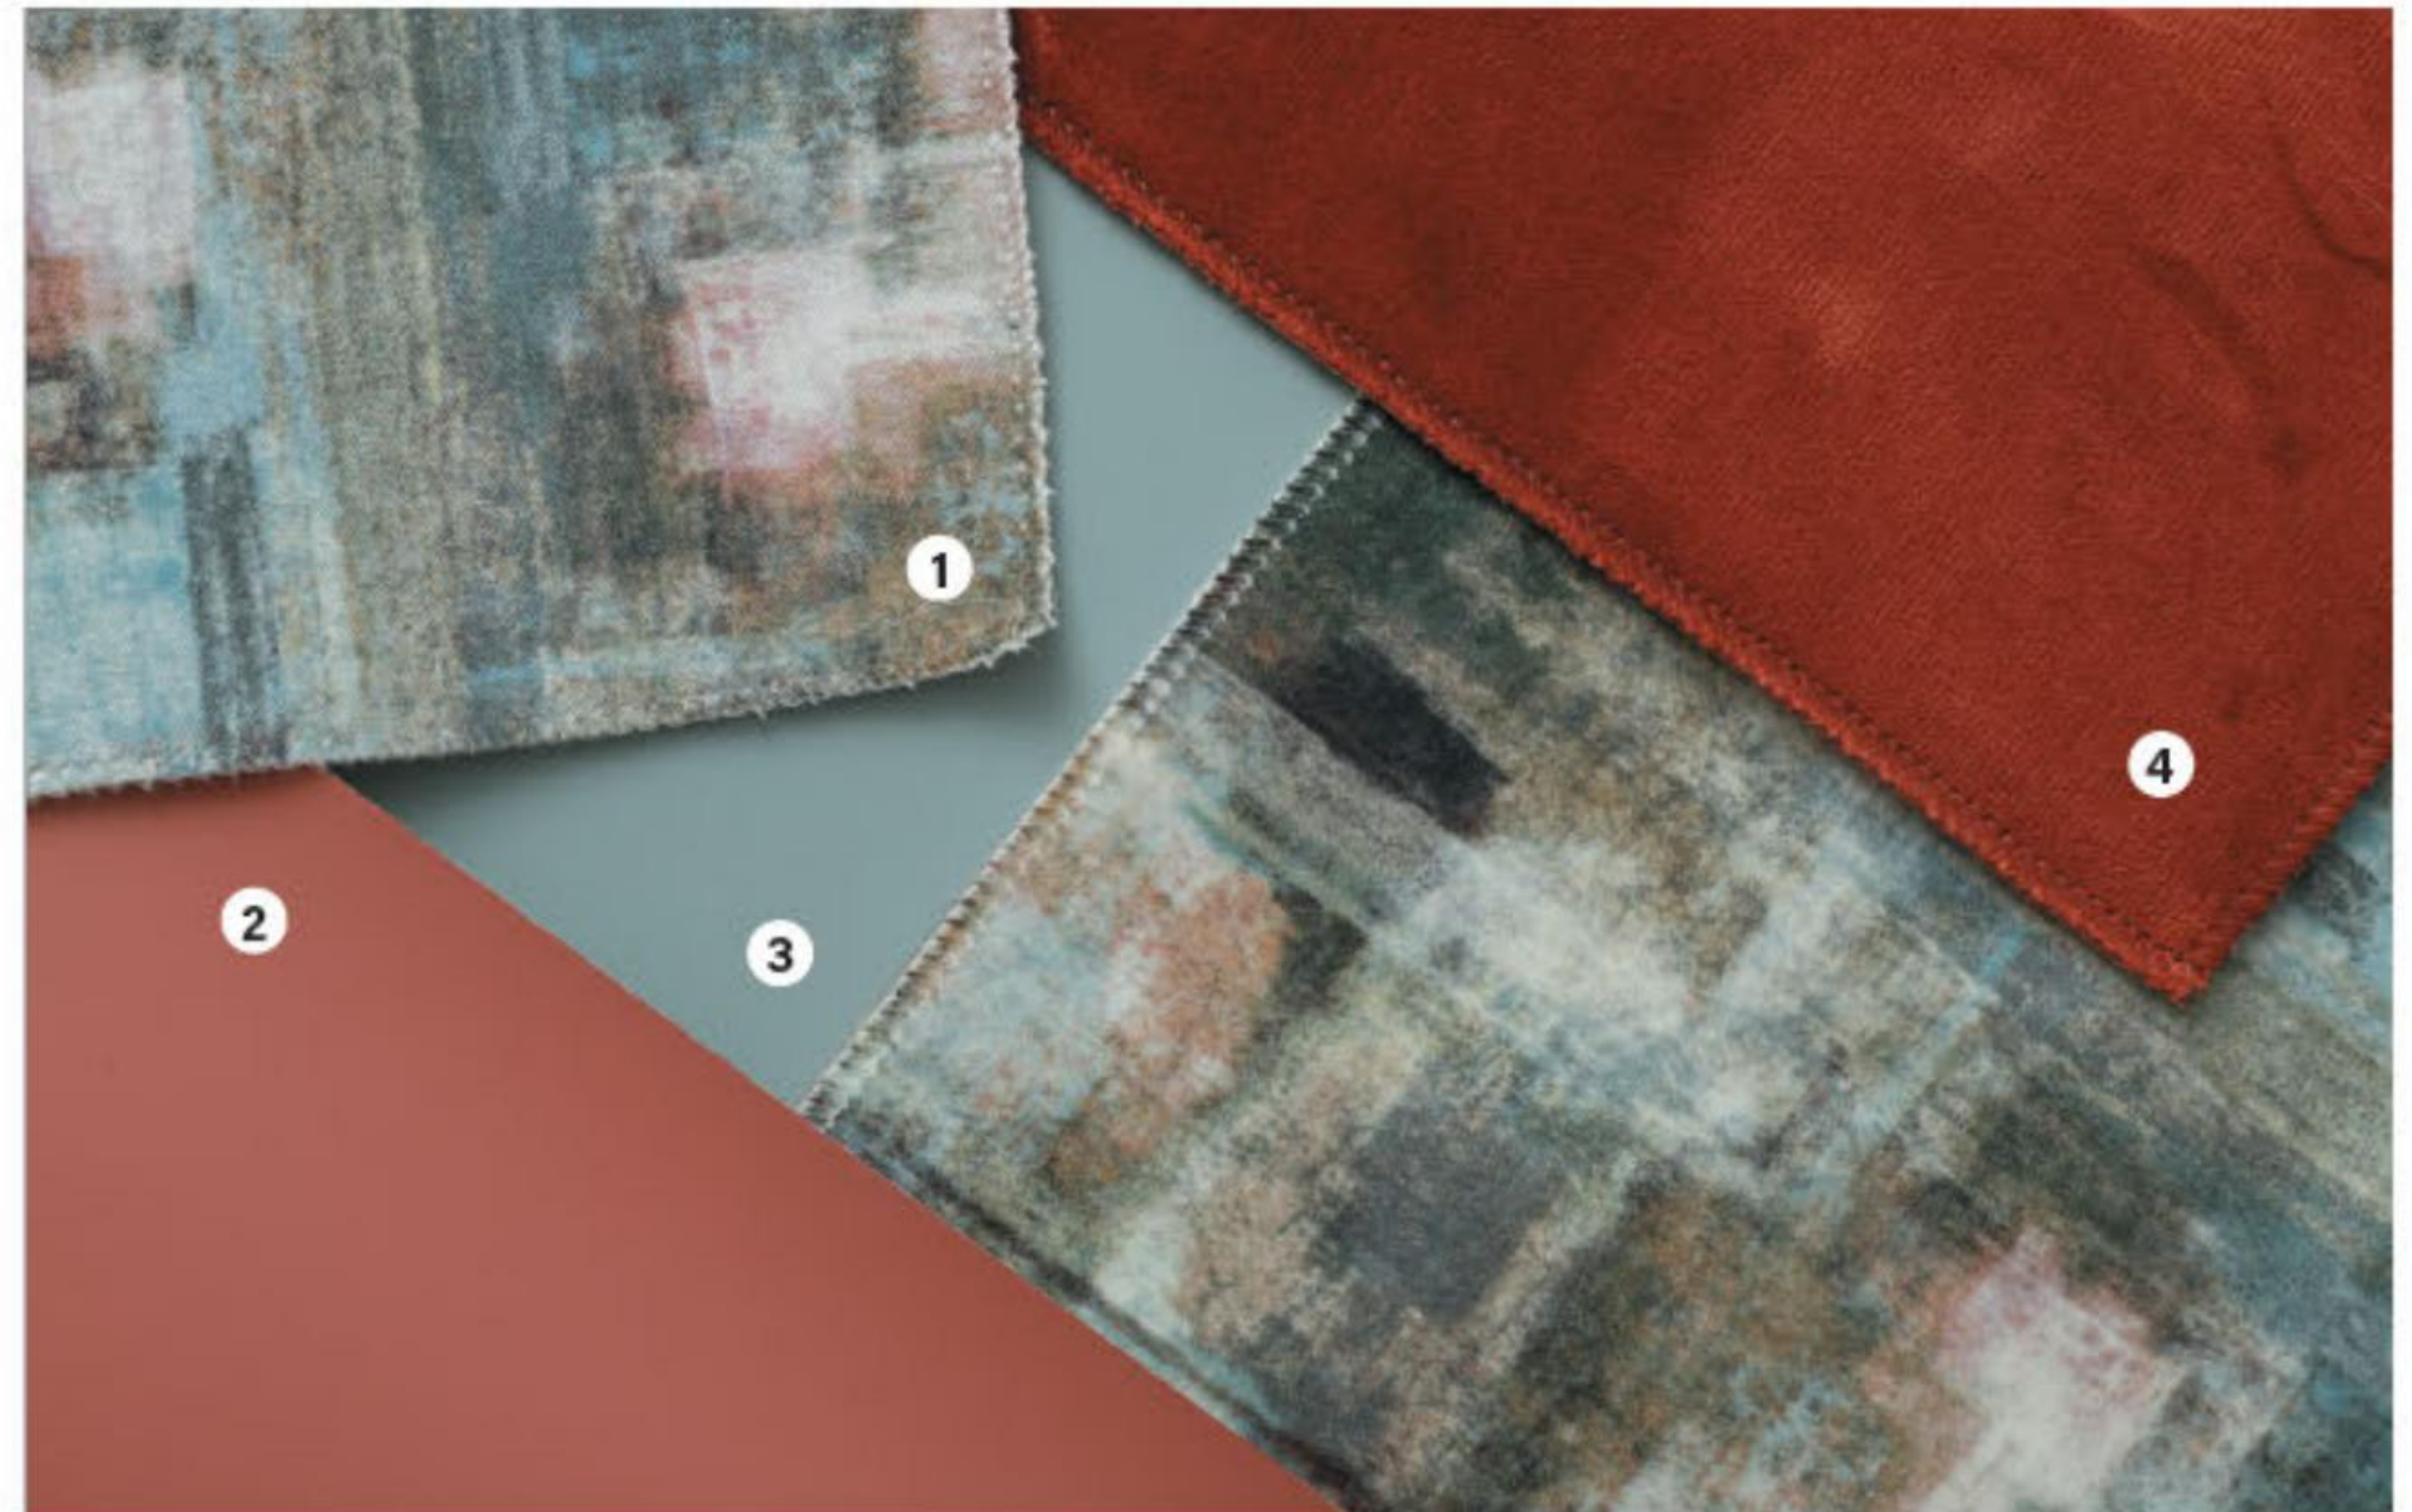

As the only upstairs bedroom without a closet or bathroom attached, this was the perfect opportunity to repurpose this room as a private study for the lady of the house. This is the space where she can gather her thoughts, organize her events, and where she displays her favorite personal collectibles and art.

Name the biggest challenge in the space?

While this home has truly awe-inspiring architectural details throughout, this was one room that was a bit lacking in that department. The challenge was to create a space that was just as inviting as the others in the house, but through furniture, décor and art.

What key design materials are included?

Any good study has a great desk, and this room is no exception. We custom designed this walnut-and-brass desk to "float" in the space, where it looks great from all angles. A comfortable and stylish executive chair with smaller neutral guest chairs anchor the middle of the room.
